

Title: Development of Mood Boards to Define Visual Direction for Real Estate Content (Photos & Videos)

1. Objective of the Task

This assignment is focused on the creation of curated mood boards that will guide the visual direction of photo and video content on habino, a real estate listing platform. The objective is to define and visualize the desired setting, tone, atmosphere, and environment for lifestyle-centric and user-focused content. These mood boards will help shape consistent, emotionally resonant storytelling across properties, aligned with our brand values.

2. Background

Habino connects buyers, renters, and agents with real estate listings, with a focus on the East African real estate markets, specifically Tanzania, Kenya, and Ethiopia. As we grow, we aim to showcase listings through authentic and engaging visual content that reflects the human experience of home — not just the features of a space. To achieve this, we need visually cohesive, aspirational, and repeatable references that can guide creative teams and production partners. The visual identity should resonate with local lifestyles, cultural nuances, and aspirational aesthetics relevant to our core markets.

3. Task Scope

- Researching industry best practices and current trends in lifestyle photography and video for real estate, interiors, and brand storytelling
- Developing mood boards that capture the desired visual tone, emotional cues, and physical settings of our content
- Recommending types of environments (e.g., cozy family homes, sleek city apartments, sunlit outdoor spaces) and styling elements that evoke lifestyle and trust
- Creating multiple mood boards (e.g., by user group, property type, or content theme) to reflect content variations
- Optionally proposing scene concepts or content types (e.g., morning routines, agent–client interactions, neighborhood walk-throughs)

4. Deliverables

- A set of curated visual mood boards including:
 - Visual tone and style cues
 - Setting and environment references
 - Sample scenes or compositions
 - Color, lighting, and emotion direction
 - Styling notes (e.g., wardrobe, props, seasonal elements)
- Brief accompanying descriptions for each board, outlining intent and production relevance
- Recommendations for suitable visual references (e.g., photographers, films, editorial shoots)

5. Success Criteria

The mood boards should:

- Provide clear visual direction that can guide photographers, stylists, and production teams
- Support consistent, brand-aligned storytelling across listings
- Be flexible enough to adapt to different property types, cities, and user demographics
- Inspire authentic, lifestyle-driven content creation that resonates with target audiences
